Guru Nanak's Bagichi

Guru Nanak's Bagichi, is a tribute to the 550th birth anniversary of Guru Nanak Dev Ji. The initiative aims to create a lush green space that showcases the various plant species mentioned in Gurbani, all while creating a serene and picturesque environment. The project serves as a reminder of Guru Nanak Dev Ji's teachings of environmental conservation, emphasizing the importance of protecting and preserving our natural surroundings. This project is a step forward in promoting sustainable development practices in the region. The project emphasises on native plants and species referenced in Gurbani. In doing so, the project celebrates the profound connection between nature and spirituality. This sacred forest was built in collaboration with EcoSikh.

EcoSikh emerged as a reaction from the Sikh community towards the challenges of climate change and environmental degradation. The organization was established under the Long-Term Plans for Generational Change initiative launched in 2009 by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the Alliance of Religions and Conservation (ARC), aimed at assisting major religious groups across the world in developing measures to enhance their association with nature in the long term. EcoSikh has undertaken the responsibility of promoting reforestation and safeguarding biological diversity through the establishment of micro forests called Guru Nanak Sacred Forests in various regions of India, including Punjab. Through the use of the Miyawaki Methodology, more than 303 micro forests have been planted and a total of 167,000 wild trees have thrived thus far, with native forest species of the region being revived. Over 100 endangered, rare, and indigenous forest species have been preserved utilizing these forests as live seed banks. These trees are planted using 100% natural compost and have a survival rate exceeding 95%, creating a secure habitat for numerous native species of birds, insects, and other small creatures. The species included in these forests are thoroughly researched, verified, and validated via forest surveys and research papers, as well as through the expertise of renowned experts in the field.

The use of native species creates a more resilient and self-sustaining ecosystem while supporting local plant and animal populations. Furthermore, trees and other vegetation have a positive impact on the air and water quality, providing valuable resources for local communities. The forest also serves as a peaceful retreat, promoting wellness and mental health, which is essential in today's fast-paced lifestyle. In addition to planting trees, the college also monitors the forests' growth and tracks the impact of their efforts. These various efforts collectively aim to promote environmental awareness, sustainability, and the message that nature holds a critical place in our spiritual traditions.

The college has installed a rainwater harvesting system on its campus to utilize the advantages of rainfall and prevent water runoff. This system comprises several roof surfaces that funnel water into large tanks, which have been designed for percolation and groundwater replenishment. With an overall capacity of 1.5 million litres per year, the system can collect 1.3 million litres of water for groundwater recharge and another 200,000 litres for general consumption around the campus. The project's success has been attributed to the construction of three large tanks that can hold up to 10,000 litres each, which has optimized the system's benefits. The project covers 80% of the college's roof area and serves as a reliable source of surface water supply, lessening the dependency on underground water. The stored water has multiple applications such as watering the gardens, potted plants and even cleaning purposes, contributing to sustainable water use, pollution reduction and overall eco-friendliness. The implementation of this rainwater harvesting system increases water availability during dry spells while diluting any salinity in the groundwater, resulting in a significant improvement in the overall groundwater quality.

College's Vermicomposting Project

The college's own Vermicomposting Project was started on 19-05-2023. The area with optimal shade and water supply has been chosen for this project. It is anticipated that the vermicompost will be ready for sale within the next three months. Vermicomposting is a process of using earthworms to break down organic waste into nutrient-rich compost. This process involves the use of a worm bin made from untreated wood or plastic storage bins, which is filled with bedding material such as shredded newspaper and food scraps. The worms are then added, and the bin is kept moist and well-aerated. As the worms feed on the organic waste, they produce nutrient-rich worm castings or vermicompost that can be used as a fertilizer for plants. Vermicomposting has several benefits, including reducing the amount of organic waste that ends up in landfills, improving soil health and fertility, reducing greenhouse gas emissions, and conserving water. It is also an effective and low-cost way to produce quality organic fertilizer for gardening and agriculture. Overall, vermicomposting is a sustainable and eco-friendly way to manage organic waste while also promoting healthy soil and plant growth. The price for which vermicompost can be sold in India varies widely based on factors such as location, quality, and seller. It is important to note that the production cost of vermicompost is significantly lower than chemical fertilizers, making it a viable option for small farmers and those looking for sustainable and eco-friendly fertilizers.

When a peacock dances in the rain, it is commonly referred to as "dancing peacock" or "peacock dance". This is a natural behaviour of male peacocks, especially during the breeding season, where they will spread their feathers into an elaborate display to attract females. The dance is also accompanied by vocalizations, such as loud calls and screams, which add to the spectacle of the display. The sight of a peacock dancing in the rain is truly a remarkable natural wonder, and it is often considered a symbol of beauty, grace, and resilience.

Canteen Area

The canteen area of the college is revered for its serene and lush greenery, a feature that not only enhances the area's appearance but also fosters a healthy environment for students to unwind during their breaks. The college administration takes great pride in nurturing and preserving this green space, encouraging students to appreciate and respect the natural beauty of their surroundings. The verdant flora and fauna act as a natural purifier, absorbing pollutants and improving the air quality, while also providing shade and reducing noise levels, making the canteen a comfortable space to socialize, study, or simply relax. The botanical paradise in the canteen imbues the space with a refreshing and serene demeanor, and enables students to take a breather from their hectic academic schedules, attune themselves with nature, and de-stress.

Concluding Remarks

The green cover in the college campus is truly a sight to behold. The lush greenery and beautiful landscaping create a serene and peaceful environment that is perfect for studying and relaxation. From well-manicured lawns to towering trees, the campus is a beauty to observe, and the photographs speak volumes about its stunning natural scenery. The green cover is not only visually appealing but also provides a number of benefits to the college community – from purifying the air to reducing stress levels among students. It is no wonder that the green cover has become an iconic part of the college's identity and a source of pride for students and faculty alike.
